PESTILENCE HOVERS OVER BONUS CAMP

RED CROSS AID FOR BONUSERS ISN'T GRANTED

PROBE BY CONGRESS OF EVICTION IS TO BE URGED

Washington, Aug. 1. (AP)—A statement that he would seek a congressional investigation in ecember of the bonus army eviction from Washington by federal troops was made today by Senato' McKellar (D., Tenn.), after a District of Columbia grand jury began an inquiry of Thursday's disorders in response to a demand by President Hoover.

At the same time, national headquarters of the Red Cross declined requests for aid of the veterans who fled Washington and are now encamped at Johnstown, Pa.

McKellar, who held the routing of the bonus-seekers and the firing of their huts by cavalry and infantry was "an act of vandalism," said a congressional inquiry should be made to find out the facts.

Hushka Rites Today

The jury heard an eye-witness account of the day's events from Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of Washington police, who was in the thick of the fighting that resulted in the bonus-seekers' eviction from the capital by federal troops.

The decision of the Red Cross to follow a hands-off policy was reached after receipt of a telegram from Mayor McCloskey, of Johnstown, asking food for the veterans who flocked to that city in the general exodus from Washington.

The coroner's inquest into the death of William Hushka, of Chicago, who was shot by a policeman on Thursday was postponed until tomorrow because some of the witnesses were before the grand jury.

Plans were completed for a military funeral tomorrow for Hushka. He will be buried in Arlington.

Meanwhile, W. W. Waters, former leader of the bonus army, returned to Washington today from Johnstown and began working on plans for establishment of a veterans camp at Waterbury, Md., about half-way between Washington and Baltimore where a woman has donated a tract of land.

Glassford spent more than an hour and a half before the jury, giving in complete detail his story of Thursday's fighting and incidents leading up to it. The only witness was E. R. Witman, treasury official, who placed before the jury all the papers in connection with the treasury's eviction orders. The treasury wanted some of the land used by the veterans so it could proceed with federal construction.

Child in Hospital

Leaving the jury room, Glassford declined to go into detail about his testimony, taking the position it would be improper for him to repeat it. He did say the inquiry delved into what happened several days before the rioting and that he had placed in evidence the orders he had received from treasury an district officials.

James L. Fieser, vice chairman of the Red Cross, in refusing to aid veterans in Johnstown, said the "primary responsibility rests upon the constituted public and private relief agencies in the communities and states where these men are located."

Other activities growing out of Thursday's trouble included an inquiry by Glassford into activities of police in rounding up a number of radical members of the bonus army and marching them out of town.

An eleven-weeks old baby from the bonus army was in a local hospital, physicians were told by parents, who are from Pittsburgh, that the child suffered a relapse from an illness when a gas bomb was exploded near him Thursday night.

Tomorrow's session of police court will hear the echoes of Thursday's fighting. Sixteen members of the radical wing of the bonus army will appear for a hearing and several other leaders will be before the judge on charges growing out of street fighting several days before when the radicals attempted to picket the White House.

Man, 33 Held for Kidnaping Child, 13

Centreville, Aug. 1 (AP)—William Click, 33, who disappeared from his Mendona home three weeks ago with his 13-year-old sister-in law, Florence Reid, is held here on a kidnaping charge. The man and girl were found in Angola, Ind., by Sheriff James E. Sorrell. The girl was returned to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Reid.

WAR IMPENDS IN CHACO DISPUTE

War clouds are gathering over the Chaco district in central South America as Bolivia and Paraguay prepare for hostilities to enforce their claims to the disputed area roughly 78,278 miles in extent. The map above shows the Chaco district in black and the chain of military outposts built by Bolivia and Paraguay, facing each other across a narrow strip of jungle where clashes already have occurred.

WAR SHADOWS GROW HEAVIER

Paraguay, Bolivia Won't Yield On Dispute in Chaco Region

(By The Associated Press)

War clouds darkened last night over the territory in the Chaco, triangular jungle between Bolivia and Paraguay, which has embroiled the two nations in a bitter dispute.

Mobilization of all the forces of Paraguay was authorized by the congress of that country and the government prepared to call army and navy reserves to arms.

At the same time the Bolivian government declared its determination to settle the dispute finally, by force if necessary.

Bolivia rejected neutral proposals for an investigation of clashes with Paraguay in Chaco since June 15, which brought about the present hostilities.

Paraguay laid the controversy before the League of Nations in a note to the league council, charging Bolivia with having violated articles ten and eleven of the league covenant by attacking Paraguayan forts. These articles bind members of the league, which includes Bolivia and Paraguay, to respect the territorial integrity of each other and provide for league consideration of war or threat of war.

League officials at Geneva are watching the developments closely, but have taken no action beyond sending a note to each country taking cognizance of the situation and alluding to the conciliatory endeavors of neutral nations.

A Buenos Aires newspaper said it understood from a diplomatic source that Argentina had proposed that it, Brazil, Chile and Peru adopt a resolution agreeing not to recognize any modification of the Bolivian or Paraguayan frontiers nor "the acquisition of territory which is the fruit of war."

Bits of Cheer in Business

Favorable business developments over the nation Monday included:

Chicago—The egg market shot up to a new high for the year, the October delivery closing at 17 3-4, up 3-8.

Pittsburgh—Total output of soft coal gained 4.9 percent over the preceding week and anthracite output showed an increase of 18.3 percent over the July 16 week, promising additional employment in these important coal fields.

Roanoke, Va.—About 400 workers will be added at the Viscose corporation plant Aug. 9, stepping production up to 20 percent of capacity.

New York—Both stock and bond markets gained with main issues moving ahead early. Profit-taking reduced advances, but some issues netted gains.

Los Angeles—A nation-wide survey from 150 major markets by Credit and Financial Management, official publication of the National Association of Credit Men, revealed a heartening turnup in July sales and collections conditions. Jackson, Mich., noted sales definitely improved with collections bettered from fair to good.

St. Paul, Minn.—Crop outlook reported as "excellent."

CANADA LOOKS OVER LIST OF TARIFF RATES

DOMINION EXPECTS TO GIVE MOTHER PREFERENCE

BY FRANK L. WELLER

Ottawa, Aug. 1 (AP)—Taking advantage of the recess in the British Imperial economic conference over Canada's civic holiday, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and his cabinet thumbed through dominion tariff schedules today preparatory to recommending a list of Britsh imports for special treatment, which probably would react adversely on American trade.

This list, if acceptable to the United Kingdom, would be final, as under the Canadian constitution the party in power retains control so long as it commands a vote of confidence in Parliament. Mr. Bennett's conservatives have a comfortable majority in both houses.

It was considered virtually certain today Canada would let down the bars on certain cotton, wool and silk goods and on steel and other products of iron.

How far the Bennett cabinet will go in the number of commodities to be given British preference for free entry is the chief thing United States trade interests have to worry about in the outcome of the conference.

In 1931 Canada imported $25,905,833 in cotton and cotton products, $16,723,947 of which came from the United States and $16,341,427 from the United Kingdom. With the exception of approximately $8,000(000 spent for raw cotton not further manufactured than the ginning process, the total value of these imports from the United States represented manufactured cotton products.

British and American industry just about divided evenly between them the Canadian market for cotton goods. It is to win for herself part of the business with the United States that Britain is asking free entry on cotton goods not widely manufactured in Canada and a lowering in the preferential rate granted her on other similar articles.

It is a fairly safe conjecture, in view of Britain's position that preferential rates do her industries no good if based on upward revision of tariffs, that Canada will give British manufacturers an advantage wherever possible by scaling down the duties on Empire goods rather than by adding to the tariffs against United States and other non-British products.

KILLER SUSPECT IS FOUND DEAD

Detroit Robber Shoots Self and Lover in New York Hotel

Detroit, Aug. 1 (AP)—Detroit police today closed out the record of Robert Newberry, much wanted as a killer and a robber by writing "dead" across his dosier.

Newberry, who had been using the name of Robert L. Conroy, was found dead in his New York apartment Sunday, beside the body of the pretty blonde with whom he had been living. In the apartment police found evidence that the couple was engaged in counterfeiting and blackmailing. Identification of Conroy as Newberry was made by fingerprints.

The man apparently had turned to the softer phases of crimes after several companions of other days in "tough mobs" had been slain or imprisoned. Police listed among Newberry's former allies Fred Burke, notorious as a killer, who now is in Marquette prison; Milford Jones, slain recently in a Detroit cafe; Gerald Chapman, hanged several years ago in the east; "Dutch" Anderson, shot to death in Kalamazoo and Gus Winkler, who beat a bank robbery case in Nebraska but brought about return of a considerable amount of the loot after he had been injured in an automobile accident near St.

New Oil Field In State Discovered

Muskegon, Aug. 1 (AP)—Oil men said today that Edward Du-Vall's No. 1 oil well in Oceana county may be the "discovery well" of a new western Michigan oil field. Flow tests Saturday and Sunday indicated a production of anywhere from 200 to 2,000 barrels a day.

Political Riots Follow German Election, Nazi Forces Gain 230 Seats

Berlin, Aug. 1 (AP)—Renewed political riots, in which four persons were killed and many others were injured, and a firm declaration against coalition government by Chancellor Franz von Papen, were today's aftermath of yesterday's Reichstag election in which no party or group of parties succeeded in winning a majority.

Interpreting the balloting as endorsement by the people of the present administration's effort "to rid the country of party control," the chancellor said he would defy the new Reichstag to oust him and his ministers.

His statement came as all Germany was waiting for Adolf Hitler, whose bid for absolute power was spurned by the voters, to decide whether he would attempt coalition or would fight the Von Papen ministry.

Political speculation was stirred by a widespread report that before the election the fiery leader of German fascism gave a pledge to President von Hindenburg and the cabinet that he would enter a government coalition is he failed to win a majority of the Reichstag seats.

The Munich Post said it had learned definitely such a pledge had been made. Despite the passionate cry of "no coalition" by some of the Nazi leaders, the paper declared, they will have to swallow the medicine against which they have been violently objecting.

Every indication is that the cabinet is remaining aloof from party bickerings about the pros and cons of coalition government. The ministers have planned to take a week's vacation preparatory to convening the new Reichstag late in August.

At the beginning of the session the government will present its program and probably will put the question of coalition government squarely before the members.

Numerous political observers are predicting that Hitler's national socialists will join with the centrists of Dr. Heinrich Bruening, with the center serving as the levening influence in the combination. Neither party had indicated tonight that coalition negotiations were under way.

In the new Reichstag the balance of power is held by the Centrists and their allies of the Bavarian People's party, who have 97 seats in a total of 607. Yesterday's election gave 230 to the Nazis, 133 to the socialists, 39 to the communists, 37 to the nationalists, 7 to the populists 4 to the christian socialists, 2 to the economic party, 2 to the agricultural alliance, 2 to the farmers federation, 2 to the state's party and 2 to the farmer's party.

Missing Farm Girl Believed Kidnap Victim

Ludington, Mich., Aug. 1 (AP)—A few blonde hairs found on a twig and marks of a struggle between a girl and at least one man in a swamp offered the only apparent clue tonight to the disappearance of 17-year-old Evalyn Sanford Saturday night.

State police said they were convinced the pretty blond-haired farm girl was abducted, probably by a degenerate, as she walked along a road through the swamp leading from Freesoil to her home, half a mile out.

Heard Girl's Screams

George Buegge, a neighbor, said he heard a girl's screams as he walked along the same highway about 10 o'clock Saturday night. Nothing further has been seen or heard of Evalyn.

State police of the Manistee post, who are working on the case, discredited reports that other girls had been accosted in the same vicinity in recent weeks. They said they had eliminated from the case entirely reports that one girl had been forced to fight off some men riding in a peculiarly marked automobile.

Evalyn, they said, had only one boy friend and he was fishing with his father the night of the disappearance. No other man or youth in the vicinity has been reported missing. The investigators said they were convinced the girl had not gone away voluntarily. With this, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sanford, agreed.

A promising clue failed to materialize when state police found that a girl, her clothing dishevelled, seen in the company of several men near a Manistee dance hall, was not Evalyn.

Drag Swamp Pools

Volunteer posses have aided in the search since the girl's parents spread the alarm yesterday. The parents did not become worried until yesterday morning, thinking Evalyn had spent the night with relatives.

Pools within the swamp have been dragged without success and the belief is that the girl was taken away in an automobile, tracks of which were seen near the scene of what apparently was a struggle.

Late today, officers interrogated Buegge but he adhered to his story in full detail. About 50 years old, Buegge is well thought of in the neighborhood, although officers said he had some eccentricities, one of which was slyness with women.

Charles Anderson and Clarence Alquist told police today that they drove along the swamp road about 10 o'clock Saturday night and saw Evalyn walking alone, with Buegge walking about 300 feet behind her.

Late today, Otto Hasenback, of Mead, Mich., reported that he passed along the road in his car, presumably a little later, and saw Buegge but that he noticed no girl.

Urging that a close watch be kept for the missing girl, officers emphasized that she is unusually tall, about five feet eight inches.

Jobless Canadians Criticize Hoover

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 1 (AP)—Some 700 unemployed Canadians, including scores of women, met in an abandoned garage here today and passed resolutions criticizing President Hoover in the bonus army proceedings at Washington and demanding emergency relief in Canada "at the expense of the rich."

The resolution criticizing the president said: "Ex-service men and working organizations assembled in Ottawa to improve the condition of all workers condemn you for your brutal treatment of ex-service men in Washington, and hold you responsible for the deaths of those workers and of maintenance of the widows and orphans of your brutal and bloody murder of your war heroes."

WELSH BLAMED BY COMMITTEE

Grand Rapids Businessmen Charge Abuses in Government

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 1 (AP)The "committee of 100" which has conducted a secret inquiry during the past four months into the "Grand Rapids Plan" of unemployment relief tonight made public its report charging abuses and inefficiencies which it blamed upon George W. Welsh, former city manager, author of the plan and now a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

The committee, headed by Julius Amberg, prominent Grand Rapids attorney, numbers 107 business and professional men teachers and clergymen.

Recommendations included substitution of cash for script payment to unemployed for work on municipal improvement projects. The committee demanded a nearly complete revision of the welfare system and called for the dismissal of M. J. Vandebunte director of social welfare, and Thomas Majchrzak, manager of the social service center which provides a home for the unemployed who are not married. Appointment of Vandebunte was called contrary to law.

Welsh Criticized

The committee's report said: "Responsibility for conditions criticized in the management of the social department must rest primarily in City Manager Welsh who held office until last Thursday and ultimately in the city commission."

The report demanded that "use of inmates of the social service center in politics should cease immediately." That discrepancies exist in the script payroll which were not explained and that "we are convinced that certain members of the personnel in charge (of the service center) have appropriated supplies to their own personal use and disposal."

The entire social service department was criticized for "lost motion, staff bewilderment, friction and inefficiency." The report charged that extra script bonuses had been granted to unemployed for "favors" to politicians and that the script system was wasteful and damaging to the morale of families.

Abolition of the city store, only place where the script can be traded for merchandise, was recommended as "humiliating" to the users and as involving high

7 FIREMEN DIE WHEN TRAPPED BY EXPLOSION

FORTUNE IN JEWELS IS SCATTERED BY HOTEL BLAST

BY MORRIS WATSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, Aug. 1 (AP)—Seven firemen lost their lives today in two terrific explosions that trapped them as they fought a blaze in the sub-basement of the fashionable Ritz-Tower hotel, which rises 41 stories above Park avenue at 57th street.

Twenty-five other persons, ten of them civilians, suffered injuries of various degree.

Thirty firemen were in the basement, fighting flames in a paint shop when the first explosion occurred just about 11 a. m.. Only nine of these were able to escape. The second blast followed almost immediately.

Debris was hurled 50 feet into the air through a sidewalk elevator opening. The windows of a large jewelry store directly above were blown out and gems worth a fortune were scattered. Plaster fell from the ceilings of the hotel's lower floors. The neighborhood a block around was shaken.

Race Against Death

Policement maintainng firelines, firemen standing outside, and others were stunned. There was a pause as men tried to gather their senses, then a race against death. Firemen plunged into rolling smoke after their comrades. Deadly gas fumes drove them back.

The dead were:

Lieut. James Harnett.
Lieut. John H. Cosgrove.
Fireman Thomas B. Finn.
Fireman James F. Greene.
Fireman William L. Pratt.
Fireman Louis Hardina.
Fireman Peter A. Daly.

For nearly two hours search of the debris in the basement continued, the rescuers balked by smoke and twisted girders. Fireman Pratt found after suction pumps had cleared the smoke, lay face down in a pool of water. His comrades worked futilely over his prostrate form for thirty minutes on the sidewalk, then rushed him to the hospital.

Deputy Fire Chief Roche, who directed the firemen, had a theory as to the cause of the explosions, but declined to state it because it was only a theory. Other firemen were certain that amonia tanks had exploded. Roche considered the actual damage to the building slight. Origin of the fire was undetermined.

New Hospital At Newberry Receives Comish's Approval

Lansing, Aug. 1 (AP)—The building committee of the state administrative board today approved the construction of a new receiving hospital at Newberry state hospital at an estimated cost of $300,000 and participation with the city of Newberry in building sewers and a sewage disposal plant at a cost of not more than $25,000. The committee's action is subject to ratification by the administrative board Tuesday.

The committee also approved new buildings at the Michigan Home and Training school to cost $200,000 increasing the Ionia hospital power plant, $9,000 and a new milk house for Jackson prison $3,500.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 1 (AP)—Speaking at an emancipation day celebration here this afternoon, Governor Wilber M. Brucker praised the American Negro for the "vitality of character which permitted him to make long strides in the 70 years since he was lifted from bondage."

He termed the freeing of the slaves by Lincoln "the greatest act of citizenship in the history of the United States."

Asserting that her husband attempted to kill her with a butcher knife, Mrs. Dorothy Pollak, 26, attractive wife of a Chicago real estate dealer, shot him dead while horrified witnesses looked on. Next day she went shopping for a coffin for her dead husband, who was 23 years her senior. She rode in a patrol wagon to the undertaker's.

DETROIT CUTS DOLE RATIONS

Destitute Families Will Get Flour for Bread and Milk

Detroit, Aug. 1 (AP)—Dole rations dwindled to bread and milk in Detroit today, and destitute families had to make their own bread.

Continuance of the milk supply depends on how long dealers will continue to credit the public welfare department, which already owes $2,600,000 and has in sight only the expectancy of a $1,800,000 loan from the reconstruction finance corporation. The flour for the bread comes from the wheat which the federal farm board gave the Red Cross to distribute.

Credit Refused

Elimination of vegetables, meat and other articles from the diet list of welfare department feeding stations, where meals are served to 6,000 persons, and from orders given to 2,000 families came this afternoon when representatives of chain grocery stores and independent wholesalers refused further credit to the city. The grocers now hold unpaid welfare orders totaling $ 1,100,000. Their representatives asked Mayor Frank Murphy to assure them they will be paid in full if the city gets the expected loan.

The mayor, taking into consideration other obligations of the department, could not give his assurance. The grocers' representatives then said they would accept no further orders.

The decision came in the midle of the afternoon and meant the filing away of grocery orders which had been made out this morning and held back from waiting families pending the outcome of the conference between

POLICE CLASH WITH RADICALS IN JOHNSTOWN

COMMUNISTS ACTIVE WHERE VETERANS ARE MASSED

BY LEO W. SHERIDAN

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 1 (AP)—While police clashed with Communists in downtown Johnstown tonight, the spectre of pestilence hovered over the suburban bivouac of 7,000 weary and hungry bonus marchers.

Word of excitement in Central Park caused hardly a flurry in the squalid camp on the outskirts of the city, where a tattered horde of grimy men, women and children wooed slumber beneath the stars.

After a frugal meal of unwholesome food—cooked in grease-covered garbage cans over open fires—the campers settled down for the night in the flickering shadows of bon fires.

Downtown, a crowd of several thousands jammed the streets when word spread that "Reds" would attempt to hold a meeting in defiance of police orders.

Prisoner Defiant

Police followed every movement of the radicals—there were only a half dozen of them—as they tried to maneuver into position to start their meeting.

Suddenly a man eluded police for a moment and mounted a statue in the park.

"My friends—" he began, but his words died away as a "flying wedge" of the state and city police seized him.

Brazen and defiant, the prisoner gave his name as George Hart, of Johnstown. He was held on a charge of disorderly conduct and suspicion. In his pockets he had literature indicating that a demonstration "for ex-service men" was scheduled for August 1.

Hart's colleagues fled with police in hot pursuit. All save Frank Garloke, also of Johnstown, escaped. Garloke, a ponderous fat man, was easily caught. He was charged with disorderly conduct.

The brush in the center of the city was the first disorder since the arrival of the bonus expeditionary force last week.

Thousands of cheering, jeering townfolk broke into a wild demonstration as Hart and Garloke were hustled to jail. At the city hall hundreds tried to follow the officers and their prisoners inside, but were driven back.

At a critical moment when the crowd was in a ferment of excitement, two factions of the city administration clashed.

Sheriff Homer George, advised that the situation was tense and that trouble might be expected, conferred with Chief of Police Charles E. Briney and they rushed reserves to the scene of disorder.

McCloskey Angered

As they reached the city hall the reserves were met by Major Eddie McCloskey, who ordered them to return to the station. He said he felt that the appearance of many uniformed officers would only make the situation worse.

After considerable wrangling, the police left. Briney promptly sent them back.

His ire aroused, McCloskey plunged into the midst of the men shouting commands that they retire. When they didn't comply, he shoved several of them. Grumblingly, they sulked away. Later about five returned and tackled the job of clearing traffic lanes in the jammed streets.

While the excitement was at its height, the fighting mayor arrested Anthony Andriassi, of Johnstown,

CHECKING UP TOTAL ECLIPSE $700-A-SECOND JOB

SUN'S BIG SHOW REPAYS SCIENCE

Scene at Escanaba in '25 to Be Duplicated on Larger Scale

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, (AP)—About $700 a second will be the probable scientific cost of the total eclipse of the sun in New England and Canada August 31. It lasts 100 seconds.

Potentially—from the viewpoint of the scientist—this investment is one of the most profitable ways of spending money. It comprises the expenses of nearly 30 astronomical expeditions from the United States, Europe and the Orient, gathered to study certain mysteries of the sun hidden at all other times from human observation.

At first sight the investment value is not apparent.

Corona to Be Measured

The astronomers measure the sun's corona, a lovely halo of white light streaming sometimes 10,000,000 miles out into space. With spectroscopes they try to learn the peculiarities under intense heat of hydrogen, oxygen and other familiar atoms.

One of the astronomers going to this eclipse was asked how the value of pure science can be measured in money.

"Many years ago," he answered, "in a German laboratory a man by the name of Hertz was making experiments on Hertzian waves. Out of this has grown the whole of wireless—or radio."

Sun a Giant 'Laboratory'

The sun during eclipse is a laboratory—a gigantic test tube, 90,000,000 miles away.

It is a tube which scientific instruments are just beginning to be able to dip into despite the vast distance. It contains secrets ranging from the beginnings of new kinds of power for machinery and energy for health to long distance weather forecasting and radio static.

Probably no group of investors spends relatively as little money or spreads it as economically as these astronomers. They give up weeks, sometimes months, to travel, do their own hand labor on instruments and often have everything spoiled by clouds.

Eclipse Bore Out Einstein

The world sat up and cheered at the 1919 eclipse because Einstein's famous relativity was "confirmed" then by study of the bending of light near the sun.

What the world does not know is how many new chemicals—things of practical value—have been created since with the aid of the queer "relativity" equations, which got their scientific vogue largely from that eclipse.

Convention Slayer

C. A. Norman (above) of Knoxville, Tenn., killed himself and Charles L. Sawyer of Hoytville, O., and wounded Reese W. Hicks of Kansas City, at a meeting in Milwaukee of the International Baby Chick association. Hicks, secretary of the association, was the object of Norman's attack but Sawyer, president, intercepted a bullet.

KILLER SUSPECT IS FOUND DEAD

Joseph, Mich.

Newberry was wanted specifically in Detroit for the killing of two underworld characters in the Lewis Cass apartments in 1927 and for jumping a $15,000 bond given to answer a charge of participation in the $40,000 robbery of Edward Lovely several months before the killing. He was wanted also in Toledo and in Cincinnati for killing policemen.

Police said that Newberry was not to be confused with Ted Newberry, a Chicago liquor racketeer. The man who was slain, they said, was one of the notorious killers graduated from the "Egan's Rats" gang in St. Louis.

SHORT WORKING WEEK IS URGED

Hoover Likely to Call Conference Soon to Discuss Plan

Washington, August 1, (AP)—Liklihood that a national conference of business leaders to discuss ways of making more jobs by shortening working hours will be called by President Hoover was seen by participants in a White House conference tonight on reemployment.

Governor Winant of New Hampshire, spokesman for a group of New Englanders who suggested the conference to President Hoover, said no final decision to call a national parley had been reached. Other conferees, however, reported it was "very likely" that Mr. Hoover would take such action.

Administration leaders taking part in tonight's conversations explained that the "New Hampshire" plan for spreading employment, which was discussed specifically, was only one of a number of such plans including movements toward the five-day, four-day and three-day week, the six-hour day, staggering of working hours and flexible work week depending upon the volume business.

Progress is Reported

Governor Winant apparently was optimistic over the reception of the ideas placed before the president.

Answering questions of newspapermen grouped around him on the front portico of the White House as the parley ended, Winant said:

"Certainly the president is interested in this plan and it was discussed in some detail. You may say that we have made some progress. We have been assured that further consideration is to be given these and other means for spreading employment and that there will be other conferences and other discussions along this same line.

"We are assured that methods of decreasing unemployment through some for of shortening working hours will be made part of the president's rehabilitation program. Although nothing concrete was decided upon at this time we are hopeful for more definite results later and will be glad to come back to Washington to further this end at any time."

Governor Winant said most of the New England representatives would leave the capital late tonight, but that he would remain until tomorrow.

in front of the city hall. Andriassi, held on an open charge, protested he is not a Communist and was merely trying to get out of the crowd when the mayor seized him.

After the furore died down, a roundup of alleged Communists got under way and five were arrested, charged with disorderly conduct. Police charge they were active during the attempt to hold a demonstration.

Medical investigators said after a tour of the veterans' billets that conditions are "bad—very bad," and "dangerous" to the health of the campers. More than 7,000 men, women and children are encamped and others are arriving hourly.

Signs of dissatisfaction and impatience reared themselves today. Complaints were made to Matthew Burke, finance officer, and R. B. Ellison, national contact officer, that some of the men have not had any food for two days.

Food Shortage

The most pressing need in the camp is for immediate food and medical supplies. The veterans and their families must carry on for at least two weeks until they can begin to move to their new home—a colony in the wooded hills near Laurel, Md. The campers have the assurance of their youthful commander-in-chief, Walter W. Waters, that they can begin to occupy Maryland colony in about two weeks.

After touring the camp, Dr. Charles I. Schaffer, of Somerset county, streaked by plane to Harrisburg to seek state aid in coping with the situation.

After Burke and Ellison reported the serious food shortage to their superior, Doak Carter, chief of staff, a hurried conference was held in McCloskey's office to see what could be done.

A complication arouse over receipt of a $1,000 check from a Chicago newspaper, the money to be used to buy food for the Chicago contingent. The Chicago boys immediately announced they are willing to share the money with others.

Hoke Smith, in charge of camp supplies, then said flatly he is opposed to any division of rations, supplies or funds.

George Anthony, one of the Chicago leaders, said that "this donation comes as a God-send because our boys are going hungry. Long lines of men and women form at every mess hour. But try to get something to eat—a few cups of brackish coffee and a few beans—that's all there is."

Mayor McCloskey asked Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania to come here and talk to the assembled horde. He said he had been told by persons "close to the governor" that he wil be here within the next few days—"if possible."

Hope—and hope alone—ruled the army of Tatterdemalion tonight as it surrendered to sleep on dew-covered grass and soggy grounds.

Long after an early autumn sun dropped behind the Alleghenies, a stench cooked up by a broiling sun arose from the camp. The smell is so strong that sleep for many is impossible or fitful.

As the camp "flopped" beneath the stars, most of the campers were without even the comfort of a burlap bag for covering against the chill mountain air.

Tattered shoes and swoolen, shoeless feet protrude from these squalid abodes. Here and there half naked men look like dead upon a battlefield.

In a dance pavilion—"Camp McCloskey" is a play spot with various amusements—the women and children of the B. E. F. huddle together. Babies cry for milk, but there is no milk. Other children, older, but still too young to understand the picture of misery into which they have been carried, plead: "Mommy, why can't we have something to eat?"

Meanwhile, squads of picket veterans are being assigned to work out preliminaries of the colonization. As soon as the advance guard arrives in Maryland, shacks will begin to rise to house those to follow.

All of the B. E. F. who have no homes will be welcomed at the new camp. Those who can go to homes or relatives or friends will be urged to do so.

TAX VALUATION TO BE SLASHED

But Reductions Will Be of Benefit to Only Four Counties

Lansing, Aug. 1 (AP)—More than a billion dollars will be cut from the state tax valuation if the recommendation today of the state tax commission is approved by the state board of equalization.

The present value for state tax purposes is $7,853,514,000. The commission proposed that it be reduced to $6,819,420,704—a cut of $1,034,094,000. The drop in valuations advocated by the commission would materially benefit only four counties. Oakland, Houghton, Keweenaw and Wayne would be given reductions greater in proportion than other counties, with the result that their share of the state tax would be slightly less than now.

The principal objective of the state valuation is to provide a basis for the apportionment of the state tax burden. Unless counties, under the proposed new value, gain a smaller percentage of the state levy they lose rather than win despite lower values. State valuations are not used, ordinarily, in spreading local taxes. With four counties recommended for slight reductions in percentage of state tax most of the other 79 would suffer slight increases.

Oakland Fares Well

Aside from being the basis of the state tax apportionment the state valuation is used to determine the mill taxes which will be levied for the university and Michigan State college. These institutions would lose if the value is reduced far enough to bring the tax below their limited appropriations.

The most substantial reduction was recommended for Oakland county, with a proposed drop from 5.59 to 5.13 percent of the state tax. Wayne would pay 49.33 percent of the state tax as compared with a present percentage of 49.6; Houghton county .47 instead of .51 and Keweenew .141 instead of .146 percent.

To absorb these reductions increases in the apportionment of the state tax levies would be spread with comparative uniformity over the other counties with most of them getting advances of fractions of one percent.

The present state tax is $29,000,000. The state administrative board is expected to reduce this figure materially when it sets a new tax within a few weeks. Governor Brucker has intimated the property levy may fall below $25,000,000. The amount of state tax each county must pay cannot be determined until the new tax is fixed.

The sharp reduction in valuation, according to members of the commission is recommended because "property values, both farm and city, are materially lower." The highest valuation in the state's history was in 1929, with $8,564,698,000. It has been pared each year since.

Refunding Bonds In Detroit Sanctioned

Detroit, Aug. 1 (AP)—City officials were notified today that the Michigan loan board had authorized the city to issue $18,507,000 in refunding bonds. The issue will be used to retire short term obligations due this year and officials said the refunding would strengthen the city's financial position.

Kiwanis Hear Address On Guam By Harold Tolan

An interesting discourse on the Isle of Guam, its geography, people, customs, industries and history, was given before the Kiwanis club at their weekly luncheon-meeting at the Ludington Hotel yesterday noon by Harold Tolan of this city, who as a marine spent 29 months on the island. The speaker has spent five and one half years as a member of the U. S. corps, four years on active duty and the remainder as a reserve.

The Isle of Guam, listeners were told, is located in the western Pacific ocean some 3,500 miles past Honolulu, about 400 miles north of the equator and just north of the South Sea Isles. Though in a tropic the climate is ideal, the isle being bathed by the cool waters of the Japanese current and being so small that ocean breezes keep the mercury down during the day, the temperatures ranging from 75 to 95 degrees, comparable to our northern summer temperatures.

Guam is one of a group discovered by Magellan who named them the Ladrones (Spanish for thieves). They were so named by the explorer when upon returning to his ship from ashore he discovered that natives had visited the craft in his absence and carried off everything removable. Following the Spaniards, the Jesuits ruled the isles for some 250 years. They came into the possession of the United States during the Spanish-American war and since then schools have been established, a naval hospital and military roads built, fortifications have been constructed at strategic points and the younger generation have been educated to modern methods and mode of living.

Enforcement of prohibition on the isle will never be possible, stated Mr. Tolan, because of the fact that it will never be possible to rid Guam of intoxicating liquor. Cocoanut trees, which grow abundantly, give off a liquor called "tuba," which is described as being between a wine and a cider. It is obtained by cutting cocoanuts from the trees and drawing into a bamboo container the juice that would have gone into the nuts. It is used by the natives as a yeast in baking and after standing long enough as a vinegar (when not used as a beverage). If, when being used for the latter purpose, it is consumed immediately after drawing it has the potency of a strong wine. If let stand for 24 hours it has about three times the original strength.

Natives have to a certain extent adopted American dress. The men wear sandals made of old tires with lacings between the toes, no stockings, American trousers cut off about six inches below the knees, American shirts, out front and rear, buttoned to the neck and no ties. The women wear a manufactured Japanese sandal, no stockings, and the main part of their dress is about three yards of cloth wrapped tightly about the waist, skirt fashion. They also wear a small ungarment over which is "mosquito netting" and wings, which conceal a portion of the arms and shoulders. About half of the younger folks, both sexes, have adopted American garb.

Fishing and rice growing are the only industries on the isle, but natives are not self-supporting as they must import nearly 10 times as much rice as they grow. The only export is copra, obtained from the cocoanut. A new industry is an American pineapple plant but this is still in its infancy.

Natives on the island have the characteristics of Southern Americans and are of Spanish, French and Indian blood, intermingled. There is little, if any Negro blood in the natives due to the fact that during the reign of the Spaniards all male negros were killed off. Between 35 and 40 Americans reside there and a number of them have "gone native" marrying one of the island beauties and settling there for life. Some of them are apparently contented, while others are dissatisfied. However, it is practically impossible to escape once tied down as the governor has absolute power and there are only three boats a year. "Look before you leap" is the motto among island whites.

Night life? Too bad, its practically nil. There is only one show each evening and the streets are cleared early.

MANY ATTEND CHURCH RITES

St. George's at Bark River Formally Dedicated Sunday

Impressive ceremonies marked the formal dedication on Sunday of St. George's Catholic church of Bark River, one of the most beautiful edifices in the upper peninsula.

The Most Rev. P. J. Nussbaum, bishop of the Marquette diocese, officiated at the dedication ceremonies, and in a brief sermon complimented the pastor and the people of the parish for their devotion to the church as was exemplified in the fine building that was erected. Rev. Fr. D. Joseph Breault, pastor of St. George's church, was the celebrant at the solemn high mass, assisted by Rev. Fr. Ovid LaMothe of Rapid River as deacon, Rev. Fr. Gerald Harrington of Escanaba as sub-deacon, and Rev. Fr. Valerian Pach, O. F. M., Studevant, Wis., as master of ceremonies. Other priests participating in the mass were: Rev. Fathers Paul Fillion, Iron Mountain; George Laforrest, Flat Rock; Joseph Considine, Washington, D. C.; Philip de Neri Jutras, Schaffer; Thomas Drengacz, Perronville; Sebastian Maier, Gladstone.

Delivers Sermon

Attending the celebration in the afternoon also were the Reverend Fathers Victor Karch, Menominee; Francis Geynet, Menominee; James Miller, Menominee; Joseph Duford, Iron Mountain; Alphonse Coignard, Perkins; Joseph Schaul, Spalding; and John Mockler, Escanaba.

The Right Rev. Msgr. R. G. Jacques, pastor of St. Anne's church of Escanaba and vicar general of the Marquette diocese, delivered the dedicatory sermon. He sketched briefly the history of the church, telling of the fire which destroyed the old edifice, the laying of the cornerstone and the Easter Sunday services that were held in the new church. He stated that although the burning of the original church building must have grieved the older parishioners because of the fact that many actually had a hand in its building and cherished fond memories of the past, they must feel proud of their more recent accomplishment. Msgr. Jacques told of the importance of the Church in the life of a community, pointing out that those who call for spiritual guidance have never found the Church failing them. That the Church links the present with the past, going as far back as the early centuries during the time of Christ, and that it would ever be the foundation stone on which civilization must stand was emphasized by Msgr. Jacques in his concluding remarks.

Many Attend

The Fourth Degree members of the Knights of Columbus of Escanaba led the procession from the rectory to the church before the mass. Splendid music was provided by the choir of St. Joseph's church of Escanaba under the direction of Miss Eva Cossette. Loud speakers were installed so as to give those who were unable to find seating room inside an opportunity to hear the dedication services from the grounds outside.

More than a thousand persons attended the picnic at Bergman's Grove during the afternoon. Music was furnished by the Legion Drum and Bugle Corps. Bark River defeated the Knights of Columbus team of Escanaba in a diamond ball game.

Many interesting things are to be seen by those who are interested in nature.

The other morning a group of berry pickers on their way through a swamp saw a large deer come out of the woods, crossing the road a distance ahead. One of the party had never had the pleasure of seeing a spotted fawn but that time her wish was gratified twice.

Seven Injured As Sedan Turns Over North of Beaver

Six members of the family of Michael Waterspank, 1406 North Sixteenth street, and Howard Rasmussen, who was riding with them, were injured Sunday afternoon, when their car skidded in loose gravel just north of Beaver station and left the road, overturning in the ditch.

The injured are:

Michael Waterspank, father of the family, left ear torn and cuts about the head.

Mrs. Waterspank—bruises and minor cuts.

Mary, 16—cuts about arms and head.

Anna, 15—severe bruises.

Frances, 13—cut on head.

Ida May, 9—left foot crushed, cut about face.

Howard Rasmussen—head cut.

Mr. Waterspank and Ida May, the most severely injured, are patients at the St. Francis hospital. The others returned to their home following treatment at a physician's office and at the hospital.

The accident occurred about three o'clock. Mr. Waterspank, who was driving, turned out in passing a car ahead, his car hitting the loose gravel and leaving the road. The automobile, a new sedan, landed with all four wheels up, and was badly damaged.

THEATRES

A fine job of casting, which bespeaks excellent entertainment, is evident in the list of players in "Stranger In Town," the Warner Bros. picture which comes to the Delft Theatre today, with "Chic" Sale, Ann Ovorak, Davit Manners, Noah Beery and Raymond Hatton in the leading roles.

This story of competition between "Chic's" country store and a chain store which opens in his town affords him an excellent opportunity to deliver the finest characterization he has yet done on the screen. His is a fighting role—a fight of a pioneer against two irresistible forces.

For the first time in his career, Sale will be seen as he really appears off-screen, minus whiskers and white wig. The opening sequences of "Stranger in Town" show him in the covered wagon days as a young man when he starts the town which later supports his general store, and in which he becomes the leading citizen.

Playing the part of his granddaughter is Ann Ovorak, the sensational screen "find" of this year. This young actress, who started as a chorus girl in musical pictures, has climbed rapidly with each succeeding picture, beginning with "Sky Devils" and "Scarface," and later with "The Crowd Roars," "The Strange Love of Molly Louvain," and now "Stranger in Town."

David Manners plays the masculine juvenile lead opposite Ann Dvorak. This popular young leading man has given some fine and even memorable performances in such pictures as "Journey's End," "The Last Flight," "The Millionaire," "Dracula" and "Man Wanted." He carries a very important role in "Stranger in Town," which promises to eclipse his previous successes.

MOVEMENT GROWS

THE movement instituted by the American Federation of Labor to create more employment by the shorter day or week has made much progress within the last week.

President Hoover has included discussion of the plan in his nine-point program for economic recovery, and the chief executive and Secretaries Doak and Lamont are attending the New England conference, called by leading industrialists and publicists to study the various angles of the proposal this week.

The American Federation of Labor has advanced the five-day week and six-hour day plan, which has been tried out successfully in some industries. Others have experimented with the four-day or three-day week; some are staggering employment; some are using furlough plan for salaried employees; some have suspended night shifts; and others are using the flexible week depending upon the volume of business.

The six-hour day has been found easy to adopt by industries working on the three eight-hour shift basis, since it permits continuous operation. Production on the six-hour day, it is said, corresponds favorably with the eight-hour shift, and economies have been effected through the elimination of the lunch period and the need for cafeteria service in some plants.

It is true that the present day unemployment has been caused to a great extent by depressed business conditions, but statistics are available showing that there had been a growing volume of technological unemployment even before the prosperity era of 1928 and 1929.

The machine has made the possible the creation and enjoyment of many additional goods and the decided heightening of our standard of living, but somewhere in our industrial system there is something out of joint. We have want in the midst of plenty.

Some plan needs to be devised so that the goods the machines produce but do not consume can be distributed to the laboring men these machines have been displacing under our present system.

BACK TO THE SOIL

IN AN interview with an Associated Press correspondent on the occasion of Henry Ford's sixty-ninth birthday anniversary, the famous automobile manufacturer again expounded his theory that large industry must be decentralized, and that factories and farms must be tied together so as to make the economic security of the workers more certain.

Mr. Ford called attention to the fact that his gigantic organization is being broken up into smaller units and distributed to about five thousand smaller towns in various parts of the country.

The most recent statement by Ford explains the additional acquisitions of land along the Escanaba river, west of Gladstone, and indicates definitely that this section of the upper peninsula is destined for an important role in the company's program.

COMMUNISTIC WHISPERINGS

(Lansing State Journal)

NEXT to poisoning a well, where many are accustomed to drink, the next most reprehensible practice is stealthily going from ear to ear and dropping poison in each, as the poisoner goes.

The poison pen is reprehensible enough, but poison gossip, record of which vanishes as quickly as spoken, is worse. It is being increasingly disclosed that an irresponsible whispering campaign is systematically being used by paid agents of communist Russia, operating in this country.

The method relies chiefly upon present day anxiety. One of the devices is to call by telephone a person suspected of being susceptible to the influence of gossip, and saying that an anonymous friend is calling advising the listener to take his funds from a certain bank. The speaker says he has certain information that the bank he names is soon to close.

Circumstances similar to the foregoing are no mere imagined affairs. The actual practice of the scheme has been put into effect right here in Michigan. Indeed, it has become so serious that over in Macomb county, what is known as a one-man grand jury investigation has just been instituted against the practice. At the time of the run on the banks in Pontiac, it was related that a whispering campaign was steadily though stealthily used. Even Lansing is not exempt as circumstances of recent days have revealed.

Those who use heinous method are not so much concerned with wrecking institutions as they are concerned with wrecking homes and wrecking individual dependence on the ordered methods of society. The communist whisperer wants to bring the one to whom he whispers into such dire straits that in desperation he will turn to communism.

It is a fact to be remarked that statements made in the open, where all may hear at once, have an altogether different effect than when told secretly and separately. Where a statement is made in the open, in public, where all may hear and think together, in the light of reason, as it were, a statement, no matter how untrue or damaging its intent, is of little effect, for it can be immediately answered and weighed as to its meaning, out of the experience of those present. But, let the same statement of damaging intent be secretly peddled from ear to ear, and a sort of unreasoning terror may seize the hearer.

Responsibility is one of the greatest words in all American public life. Responsibility for a statement or an idea is fundamental. Every individual has a right to know who is responsible behind everything he reads or hears. Beware of whispering campaigns.

In one of the new divorce petitions a woman charges that her husband "abused, cursed and struck" the plaintiff in a manner unbecoming a husband. Perhaps at the trial of this suit, the presiding judge will throw some light on how these things may be done in a manner becoming a husband.

We doubt whether Hot Springs will ever be able to catch Reno in the matter of divorces. Besides being a late starter, the Arkansas city has the added disadvantage of being a greater distance from Hollywood.

There's nothing like a change of scenery and environment for widening the mental horizon. For instance, Al Capone says from his Atlanta work bench, "Rackets get you nowhere but here."

Mussolini now constitutes a majority of the Italian cabinet, having taken over six more places. If he keeps that up, a cabinet conference will soon be just Mussolini talking to himself.

A scientist has learned that a beetle can live for three years without food. But that doesn't mean that a man can be taught the same trick.

SOISSONS TAKEN

On Aug. 2, 1918, victorious French troops occupied Soissons, which had been evacuated during the preceding night. The German army corps which had been operating in the Marne salient was reported retreating rapidly.

American and French regiments advanced five miles north of Fere-en-Tardenois and French outposts were established in the deserted town of Ville-en-Tardenois.

German losses during the battle which began as their fifth offensive on July 15 and ended in their most decisive defeat in years, were estimated at more than 250,000 men by allied observers.

The balance of power on the western front had definitely swung to the allies, and neither Germany nor her allies was on the offensive on any active front.

for LOVE or MONEY

(By NEA Service) BY H. W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Wall Street law office, goes with her childhood sweetheart, STEVE SACCARELLI, to a popular supper resort, the Halcyon Club. Mona supports her invalid father, mother, little sister, KITTY, and no'er-do-well brother, BUD. Steve has been mysteriously absent for three years. He has returned, well dressed and prosperous. With no thought of impropriety, he has ordered a gown and wrap sent to Mona which, after much indecision, she wears.

At the office that day Mona has met BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent, but refused his invitation to dine with him.

Bud Moran comes to the Halcyon Club to see BUCK HARKINS, the proprietor, who has underworld connections. Mona sees her brother and fears he is associating with gangsters. Steve tries to quiet her fears.

LOTTIE CARR, fashion model, dismisses her escort and joins Mona and Steve. Then Steve's business partner arrives. He proves to be Barry Townsend. Barry tells Mona how Steve, years before, had befriended him, how together they sailed for South America and have been operating a diamond mine that Townsend inherited.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XI

FOR the rest of the evening Mona was all gaiety. She had determined to put her worries aside and not spoil Steve's party. During a dance with him she slipped away to telephone her home. Bud answered and his voice was casual, satisfying.

Yes, he'd been working. Sure, he was in now for the night. What? Oh, eating a sandwich. Yeah. Be home a little later, would she? Well, that was okay. He'd leave a light.

Mona turned away from the telephone relieved. Bud was home and apparently staying there. His voice had seemed as innocent as Kitty's might have.

The four young people danced at the Club Morgan, exchanging partners with gay, flattering banter that made each girl feel certain that secretly each man would have preferred her to the other. Then they drove swiftly through the park in Steve's car to the latest and smartest club in Harlem and danced again.

"More like home, eh?" Barry laughed over his shoulder at Steve, as a gorgeous cafe au lait dancer in pink, a lithe, arresting figure, swung by.

They ate again—coffee, golden brown, with toast and scrambled eggs. Suddenly Barry looked up to exclaim, "This is too late for you!" He was gazing at Mona for Lottie, apparently, did not strike him as a martyr to the nine-o'clock appearance at work. "Tell you what I'll do! I'll use my pull at the office to get the day off for you!"

"Sh!" Mona whispered. They had not told Steve that they had met at Garretson's.

"That's right," muttered Barry. He and Mona both smiled. This was the second secret they had shared. For both of them knew that, of the two, Mona's influence at Garretson's office was greater than the young man's.

In the front seat of the car, her golden head frankly on Steve's shoulder, Lottie opened her eyes to announce that 'old Pilgrim himself couldn't get her to appear on duty at his shop before 3 p. m.

"And maybe I won't be there then!" she added. "They'll think I'm at the fashion show and the fashion show will think I'm at the shop. All's well for little Lottie!"

"Of course they wouldn't think of telephoning," suggested Steve, giving her head a good-natured push. "They couldn't check up on you, I suppose?"

"I'll take that chance," Lottie answered.

MONA noted, not without a pang, that Steve and Lottie had reached a state of complete camaraderie.

"You're good, Lottie," she murmured.

"Good?" echoed the other girl, settling her wrap about her. "I've got to be good! There hasn't been a figure like mine at Pilgrim's since Mona left us."

"And there won't be until she goes back!" Steve agreed firmly.

Mona's heart leaped. Instantly Lottie was generous enough.

They dropped Lottie in front of her apartment house in the 50's amid effusive interchange of banter, telephone numbers and good-nights.

Barry left them at the Park avenue address. He was spending the night at the apartment to which both young men referred as "Steve's place." Mona was sitting beside Steven now. Her own address was hardly 10 blocks away and he drove slowly.

"Steve, I'm sending these things back tomorrow."

"We'll talk that over later, honey. What you need now is a few hours of sleep."

"Well, later then," she answered drowsily.

"Gee, Min, it's been great to see you."

She aroused herself long enough to answer this. "I observe that you seem to think so."

"Because I talked a lot to Lottie? How could anyone escape? Oh, Mona—that isn't like you."

She patted his hand as it lay on the wheel and his fingers caught her own.

"You see," Steve explained naively, "I wanted old Towny to have the best."

THE car glided carefully out of the way of a taxicab, appearing suddenly from nowhere, and turned into East 67th street. It settled quietly a door or so away from the entrance to the Moran apartment. Steve walked with Mona to the entrance. She stood for a moment and looked at him gravely.

"Don't worry about Bud," Steve whispered. "I'll take a hand in that. Forget it!"

He tipped her face gently upward, his gloved fingers beneath the quaintly pointed chin. "Remember how I used to call you 'little pointy face'?"

Mona remembered.

"Bye. See you some more. I'll call you this afternoon at the office. Maybe you'll let me drive you home or something.

"Maybe."

Steve returned to the car, paused a moment lighting a cigaret and slipped beneath the wheel. Mona, watching, knew that he would wait until she had had time to climb the three flights so that the creaking of her door and the starting of the motor car would not be simultaneous.

She tried not to worry about Bud as she saw, gratefully, that he was asleep in his room. She reflected that Steve's interest in the matter would help her a lot.

BACK at the Halcyon Club, Buck Harkins was finishing a long talk with Chile.

"Yeah. Saccarelli offered a diamond for sale. Diamond of the first water, Chile. Blue as steel. Bigger than the Regent of Portugal. Bigger than the Star of the South. Two hundred twenty carats, Chile! What a stone!"

"Where'd he get it?"

"Came by it honestly — that's the funny part. He's offering it on the open market and we've got to get it!"

Chile stood up, stretching his huge length with a spread-eagle motion that filled the room.

"How we going to get it? How

GRIEVE NOT TOO LONG

We thought we grieved in wintry ways,
But now the heat of summer days
Makes us more kindly; we remember
The merry moments of December.
So time will always bring relief;
We shall look back to ev'ry grief,
Some long, long year of fleeting minute,
And find it had some goodness in it.

Yes, so it always is with care:
The load we think we cannot bear
At first grows heavier, then lighter,
As starlit skies are always brighter
Than that first dark when day is done
That follows the retreating sun.
Although we grieve, however often,
There is no grief but time will soften.

And sooner that relief will come,
The burden grow less burdensome,
To those who look beyond their sorrow
To see the stars, the sun tomorrow.
Grieve with your grief, but not too long:
To grieve is right, to brood is wrong.
And we who look ahead to find us
Some gain, will leave some loss behind us.

BRAZEAU WINS CAMP HONORS

St. Joseph High School Athlete Takes 5 C. M. T. C. Prizes

Fort Brady, Aug. 1.—At the annual Visitors Day program on Saturday, the awards and prizes were presented for all activities of the camp period. Philip H. Brazeau, 1010 3rd Ave. So., Escanaba took the lion's share of the honors, winning five different prizes.

The St. Joseph high school all-around athlete won a silver cup for being a member of the championship doubles tennis team, two medals for track events, a Babe Ruth autographed baseball and bat for being judged the best baseball player for the second consecutive year, and most important of all, he won the wrist watch which goes to the best athlete in camp each year.

Brazeau came near getting a sixth award in the form of a gold baseball for the championship team of Camp Grant but a three run rally in the ninth inning plus another run in the eleventh, gave the championship to Company M in the play-off game Saturday afternoon. Both Brazeau, the I Company pitcher, and Ed Sautter, the Bay City twirler of M Company pitched brilliant ball in one of the best and most evenly matched games ever played at Fort Brady, but the latter club won 5 to 4 in 11 innings.

Wins Scholarship

Although the St. Joseph star took the most individual prizes here, it was left to Company M to capture nearly all of the group honors. Besides the baseball championship, they took the track and field meet, had the Best Blue and Best White among them, and they were presented silver loving cups for having the best Circus Night and the best rating for the total inspections of the month.

Another Escanaban who captured high honors is Wallace J. Wilson of 404 So. 9th St. who was awarded the Michigan Tech scholarship, which is presented each year at the C. M. T. Camp here. Norman Brown of Calumet won the Ripon College scholarship.

Besides all this, other Delta and Schoolcraft County men took places in the track meet, and Walter J. "Germany" Zoellner also of Escanaba took first place in machine gun shooting, making a score of 64 out of a possible 68 which is a very excellent record. Everett Bailor of Lansing won the pistol shooting championship while Eugene Smith of Glennie had the best record with the rifle, shooting a 49 out of a possible 50.

The Second Best Athlete prize went to John N. Hammer, star runner of Wakefield. Melvin Varney of Marquette won a special award given by the Sault Ste. Marie American Legion Auxilliary to the most chivalrous man at camp. This same Varney also won about the highest honor of the C. M. T. C. when the medal for Best Blue, or fourth year student, was presented to him. S. Wesley Wells of Petoskey won the Best White award, Wayne Shepherd, White Cloud the Best Red award, and Willard Rodda of Iron River was judged the Best Basic of the entire battalion.

Osborn Speaks

The feature of the Visitors Day program was the speech by Chase Osborn, former Governor of Michigan in which he told the boys of all they had received for their betterment at the C. M. T. C. His theme was that "keeping in step" was all that there was to life. Major Crawford, the commander of Fort Brady and Camp Grant gave his farewell address on this same day in which he heartily praised his trainees for their conduct through the month spent here.

Visitors Day was completed by the Battalion Dance which began on late Saturday night. This was the last and most important social event of the 1932 camp and it, too, was very successful due to the fine directorship of Mrs. Lester Hodges, the camp hostess. The dance was held in the Soo Armory which was splendidly decorated with the American colors and American flags. The trainees were chaperoned by members of different patriotic organizations in the Sault as they gaily dance until 1:30 a. m. Sunday.

July Mixed Up Rain, Sunshine; Hottest Day 93

While other sections of the nation sweltered, Escanaba went through July with a mean temperature of 67, just one degree above normal. Records at the office of Harvey H. Spindler, meteorologist in charge of the weather bureau here, show that the maximum daily temperature reached 90 or better only three times in the month, and touched 93 on the sixteenth and eighteenth. A 47 on July 3 and 4 were the low marks of the month. The highest July temperature on record here in the 60 years that records have been kept was 100, and that was on July 30, 1916.

Precipitation for the month was far above normal, wiping out any deficiency of the previous months and giving the year a surplus of 2.40 inches for the first seven months. The total for July was 5.87 inches, compared with normal for the month of 3.33. The greatest precipitation in 24 hours came on the twentieth, when a shower brought nearly three inches of rainfall.

July had something of a record in thunderstorms. There were 11 different days in which thunderstorms were recorded. The July weather summary shows seven clear days, 16 partly cloudy, and eight cloudy. Rain fell on 12 of those cloudy and partly cloudy days.

The first day of the month brought the heaviest wind velocity, the maximum being 32 miles per hour from the northwest.

"GRAND HOTEL" COMING HERE

All-Star Film of Vicki Baum's Play at Delft Next Week

"Grand Hotel," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's all-star picturization of Vicki Baum's great stage success, will be presented as a legitimate engagement at the Delft theatre next Monday and Tuesday.

This is the first time since the days of "Ben Hur" and "The Big Parade" that any picture has been "roadshowed" nationally on such a tremendous scale. Plans worked out by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials for exclusive first run twice daily showings on "Grand Hotel" in hundreds of cities throughout the country followed the overwhelming public response to the film at its world premiere at the Astor theatre, New York.

The cast of "Grand Hotel" has been conservatively termed the most remarkable ever assembled for any screen production. Five of the leading screen stars head the list—Greta Garbo, John Barrymore, Joan Crawford, Wallace Beery and Lionel Barrymore. Other featured players include Lewis Stone, Jean Hersholt, Ferdinald Gottschalk, Tully Marshall and Robert McWade.

In New York City the advance sale of tickets for "Grand Hotel" is the largest in the history of the Astor theatre. As a result of the unprecedented public demand for tickets, seats are now being sold for three months ahead, and from the time the box office opens until it closes at night long lines maintain a vigil in front of the theatre.

Edmund Goulding directed "Grand Hotel" from a special motion picture treatment prepared with the assistance of Vicki Baum, author of the play. Goulding's recent productions include "The Trespasser" and "The Devil's Holiday."

In "Grand Hotel" Greta Garbo has the part of Grusinskaya, the Russian dancer who falls in love with a pearl-stealing Baron (John Barrymore). Lionel Barrymore has the role of Kringelein, the invalid out for a final fling at life in the most expensive of Berlin hotels. Joan Crawford has the part of the seductive stenographer, Flaemmchen, and Wallace Beery appears as Preysing, the textile magnate.

Director Goulding's avowed intention in bringing Miss Baum's great stage success to the screen was to use the camera as a "walking personality," letting it follow the tangled destines of the central characters as would an invisible onlooker. Several mechanical innovations are said to have been used in photographing "Grand Hotel" while the lavish settings for the picture represent months of creative design and research work.

The land boundary between United States and Canada is marked by 5,483 monuments.

Marcella Casper of Talmage, Neb., graduated from high school with a record of 11 years without absence or tardiness.

GARDEN NEWS

Garden, Mich. (Special)—Paul Mayou has been confined to his home on account of sickness during the past week.

Mrs. Amy LaSalle and family of Iron Mountain spent the past week with Mrs. LaSalle's mother, Mrs. Delphius Lamotte. Part of the time was spent on the blueberry plains north of town.

A recent hailstorm did much damage on the Peninsula, and especially at Burnt Bluff, Fayette where fruit was stripped from trees and much grain and garden vegeaables cut down.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Clifton and family of Iron Mountain were guests at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Clifton of Fayette during the past week. Much of the time was spent on the blueberry plains.

The Woman's Guild of the Garden Congregational Church, scheduled to be held at the home of Mrs. Harry Hennessey last Wednesday was postponed until Wednesday, August 3rd.

A recent windstorm blew down a large spruce tree near the Solby Lafave residence. No buildings were damaged.

Mrs. Joseph Farley, daughter Merle of Garden and Henry Jacobson of Fairport left Thursday for Grand Rapids and Detroit where they are making a brief visit with friends.

Felix Brassear is making his temporary home on the Herman Haas farm at Kate's Bay.

The blueberry plains are pretty well picked over and the attention of local people is being turned to the raspberries which are rapidly ripening. Reports indicate that for some unexplained reason, the patches throughout the Garden Peninsula will not yield their usual abundant harvest. Many local people are going to what is known as the "Nahma Line" where they find excellent picking. It is reported that some families have brought back nearly one hundred quarts, the result of one day's picking. It will be several weeks before the main crop of blackberries will be ripe. The prospects locally are unusually good.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamad Haas and family of Muskegon are expected to arrive in the near future and will occupy the Herman Haas place at Kate's Bay. Mr. Haas is turning over his farm to Homad. The parents will continue to occupy their present residence while their son and his family will use the near by residence.

James Warden of West Graham, Virginia, is spending a two week's vacation at the home of Rev. and Mrs. H. Heafield.

Mrs. S. H. Goldberg returned Saturday from an extended visit with relatives in and around Chicago. Amongst those visited were three sisters, Mrs. C. A. Weber, Mrs. S. H. Robineau, Mrs. J. J. Fensen, all of Chicago; also three brothers.

S. H. Goldberg left here Friday for Chicago where he will buy his fall merchandise. He expects to return about the middle of the coming week.

Colors Give Smartest Note To Summer Style

Paris, (AP)—The small town woman who wants to be smart will spell her summer chic with color.

Scores of gay little frocks, scarfs, jackets and caps have been produced by designers to brighten suburban wardrobes.

Polka-dotted silks, smart flowered prints, stripes and plaids are used for both costumes and accessories for the woman who lives outside the urban crush.

Wool Coat Serviceable

A simple dark wool coat should be the basis of her wardrobe, designers say, since with one frock it is suitable for more occasions than a tailored suit.

It may be navy blue, brown, dark grey or black but the frock which goes with it should be gay.

"Prints" is Paris' favorite advice for an all-round Main Street frock. A dark blue foulard spattered with jagged dots of crimson, green and beige may be worn with a dark blue coat, a red chip straw hat and a red bag, and a brown and green shadow plaid frock may accompany a plain brown coat.

Many of these little print frocks have elbow length sleeves so that they are ready for wear at both bridges and teas.

Washable Silks In Vogue

Little frocks and suits of washable silk such as shantung and crepe Olympic are Paris' newest offering to the smart suburbanite for less formal wear.

Many of them are brightened by accessory sets of hat, scarf and bag in polka dotted silk or linen.

A beige shantung suit has a sailor hat and scarf of green and beige polka dotted silk, while a pale blue suit is touched up with accessories of navy blue and white striped linen.

Cottons Popular

For days at home, porch parties and equally informal affairs cottons are everywhere. Printed muslins, gay ginghams and even upholstery chintzes are fashioned into nonchalant short sleeved frocks often combined with a contrasting color.

Little printed jackets may be worn with plain colored cotton frocks while plain short sleeved boleros top bright-printed dresses.

Yellow turnips, peas and carrots taste better if a generous amount of sugar is added to them while cooking.

A recipe for the hot pack method of canning string beans has been received from a Manistique reader, E. Kandell, along with recipes for canning peas and corn.

Canned String Beans

Select and grade product.

Wash, cull and string and cut into convenient lengths.

Scald five minutes, and pack in hot jars.

Add one teaspoon salt to each quart and boiling water to within 3-8 of an inch from the top.

Place rubber and top in position and process 120 minutes.

Remove jars from canner and tighten tops.

Steam pressure should be five pounds sixty minutes and from 10 to 15 pounds for forty minutes.

Canned Peas

Selection product and grade, shell and scald for five minutes.

Pack in jars not tightly and add one teaspoon salt to each quart and coiling water to within 3-8 inch of top.

Place on cover and rubber and process 180 minutes. Remove jars from canner and tighten tops. Steam pressure, 10 to 15 pounds 60 minutes.

Canned Corn

Select corn between milk and dough stage, remove husk and silk.

Scald not longer than five minutes.

Cut corn from cob with sharp knife, cutting from top to butt.

Pack at once in jars, not tightly and add teaspoon of salt to each quarter and boiling water to within 3-8 inch of the top.

The milk of the corn may be added to the boiling water.

Place rubber and top in position.

Process 180 minutes, hot water bath steam pressure, 10 to 15 pounds 60 minutes.

Remove jars from canner and tighten tops. Corn also may be canned on the cob by following this recipe. Use only two inches of water in jars. This preserves flavor of corn. It is best to can corn in pint jars.

Inez H. Irwin Chosen to Write Of Achievements

Inez Haynes Irwin, widely known novelist and first woman president of the Authors' League of America, has been chosen by the National Council of Women to write a book summarizing the achievements of American women for the past hundred years which will be published by the Council in connection with the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago next year. The announcement, which was made today by Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, the president, has been eagerly awaited by women in all sections of the country.

Six months of intensive research by a staff of experts has assembled material for the book Mrs. Irwin will write, which will cover all the important developments affecting women of this country individually and collectively since 1833. It will also give a condensed history of the 29 organizations connected with the Council, which have an aggregate membership of 5,000,000 women.

"We hope to make this book the most comprehensive history of the woman movement yet undertaken in this country," explains Miss Phillips. "The author will endeavor not only to show the important changes that have come to women politically and socially in a hundred years, but also to evaluate the contribution organized womanhood has made to American development and progress."

An ardent feminist, co-founder with Maud Wood Park of the National Collegiate Equal Suffrage League, which flourished during the campaign for the Woman Suffrage amendment, and a frequent contributor to feminist publications as well as to popular magazines, Mrs. Irwin is an appropriate choice for the authorship of the proposed volume. She has been in the forefront of women's activities for many years, and her answer when she was asked to write the book was "How can I refuse, when I am more interested in the progress of women than in any other subject?"

At present Mrs. Irwin, with her husband, Will Irwin, is at her summer home at Scituate, Mass., working on a book which must be completed for September publication. She will not do any actual writing on the Council book there, but the material which has been assembled will be forwarded for her to study and she will begin work upon her return to New York in the fall.

The research material has been assembled and compiled under the supervision of Dr. Kathryn McHale, executive director of the American Association of University Women, by Miss Judith Clark, an expert in the research field, and Miss Carolyn Chapin, her assistant, and countless sheafs of paper and hundreds of filing cards which have upon them a concentrated history of the woman movement are ready to turn over to Mrs. Irwin.

Two significant facts intimately affecting women which are sure to find a place in the volume, since they happened at the very beginning of the century which the book commemorates, are the formation of the first woman's club in America and the admission of women to Oberlin college, first institution of higher education in the world to open its doors to women. Both these events happened in 1833, at the onset of the period of which Mrs. Irwin is to write.

Publication of the book is one of three projects which the National Council of Women is carrying out. The others are a composite exhibit of the work of its 29 member organizations in the Social Science division of the Century of Progress Exposition, and an International Congress of Women to which delegates from many countries will be invited.

MARBLE TELLS OF CONVENTION

Delegate to International Meeting Speaks to Rotary Monday

In an excellent address before the Rotary club yesterday, Floyd W. Marble, delegate from the local club to Rotary International in Seattle, related the experiences and impressions gained on the trip. Mr. Marble left for Seattle the latter rpart of June and returned to Gladstone a month later after having joined a group of Rotarians on a trip to Alaska following the convention.

FLOYD MARBLE

In opening his address the speaker told of his trip to Seattle, pointing out the points of interest on the way and the efforts made by various individuals and communities to entertain the Rotarions enroute. From Minneapolis the trip was made by special train with stops at Mandan and Medora, N. D., the Yellowstone Park, Spokane and other places. At Mandan a group of Indians in their tribal costumes entertained with the dances of ancient days; at Medora, a rodeo was staged; one day was spent on a trip through the Yellowstone Park, and at Spokane the Rotarians were taken for a trip through the city and its surrounding beauty spots.

Mr. Marble paid tribute to the hospitality of Seattle. "Having attended the Minneapolis convention," he said, "and serving at the Chicago convention as an assistant sergeant-at-arms, I had a yard stick by which to measure my impressions of the Seattle meeting. The first thing upon leaving the train we were met by dozens of host Rotarians who welcomed us so genuinely. They looked after our baggage and escorted us to a courtesy car which took us to our hotel. Other hosts took charge of us there and saw that we got in line to get our reservations. When we were ready to go to the auditorium, we went to a special entrance reserved for the courtesy cars and in charge of several Rotarians and Boy Scouts, who sent us on our way. They say that first impressions are lasting, and if that is so I will always have pleasant memories of Seattle. This hospitality was in evidence all during the week and we wondered from day to day how they could keep it up, but we had no more trouble getting transportation, the last day than the first.

"The auditorium was beautifully decorated and the acoustic properties were perfect and it was a real pleasure to attend the sessions. There was no loud speakers in evidence and the words seemed to come directly from the speakers mouth in their natural voices. On account of not being able to start decorating until midnight on Saturday, owing to a convention, it was all the more remarkable. The stage represented a Pacific Northwest forest, mighty tree trunks provided a frame for a huge painting of Mt. Rainier. In front of the stage were thousands of rhododendrons which because of the lateness of the convention had been kept in cold storage, which were renewed each day.

"The House of Friendship, which was in Ice Arena, adjacent to the auditorium, was decorated in a rustic style. The balcony was filled with 3,000 fir trees. From the edges of the balcony to the floor, log and shake walls had been erected, giving the arena the appearance of the courtyard of a huge rustic lodge situated in the very heart of the forest. The steel girders above were almost entirely concealed with large flags, representing practically every country in the world, and were all made in Seattle. The various committees had their booths around the court yard. Bouquets of fresh flowers were given daily to the ladies at their special lounge. They were given by the Seattle Kiwanis club and made up by the wives of the Rotarians. As it was the height of the rose season they were in evidence everywhere."

Mr. Marble then proceded to tell of the opening meeting of the convention at which Sydney W. Pascall, London, Eng., was the principal speaker. Mr. Pascall's speech was devoted to recounting his experiences on a tour around the world to visit Rotary clubs. The Rotary head will have traveled 60,000 miles on his world tour before returning home, Mr. Marble stated.

A message from Paul P. Harris, President Emeritus, which was read at the convention, was pointed to by Mr. Marble as one of the finest expressions brought before the convention. "It was packed with sound reasoning and advice," Mr. Marble said, quoting from mthe message as follows:

"'In days of adveristy, prepare for prospeity. No nation ever became great through prosperity. To be sure, 1932 is a suicide year —another evidence of the fact that it is a mistake to appraise business above life.'

"'What the world needs today is another renaissance, one as mighty and resistless as that which swept over Europe at the close of the Middle Ages. Rotary should play a leading part in such a renaissance. Jazz has had its day and been found wanting. Let us try to culture for a change. Let us have done with this worship of presperity lest it do away with us. In the days of adversity, prepare for prosperity, the supreme test of mankind.'"

Continuing, Mr. Marble reviewed the addresses of a number of the speakers of the convention, including, Henry G. Bennett, Stillwater, Okla., Ed De Groot, of Los Angeles, Boy Scout executive, and Mrs. James W. Davidson, of Galgary, who traveled with her husband through Asia organizing Rotary clubs.

In closing, the speaker gave a graphic description of an outdoor show staged for the benefit of the Rotarians in the Seattle stadium, adjacent to the auditorium. An exhibition of "high-climbing" featured the show, he said. "In the middle of the stadium," Mr. Marble related, "two towering fir trees had been transplantd so that four "high climbers" might display their nimbleness in scampering up and down these 120 ft. tree trunks. Two of them started from the bottom at the same time and climbed to the top and started to chop off a section. It seemed for a while that one of them was much ahead but when he sank his axe in for the last time and gave the top a push, the other man was only a second behind. They both let their axes hang on a rope fastened around their waists and sat down on the tops to get their wind before starting down. In climbing they used spurs similar to those of linemen we see here. They also have a rope fastened to their belts which encircles the tree. In dscending they slip the rope down as far as it will drop and then climb down until they have passed it and the same procedure is gone thru again. One of the men literally ran down the tree."

At a later date Mr. Marble is to tell Rotarians of the trip to Seattle. On that occasion motion pictures of the places visited will be shown.

Pythian Services For C. W. Lightfoot

Charles W. Lightfoot, 75, who died Saturday following an illness of six months duration, was laid to rest in Fernwood cemetery yesterday afternoon, following services at the Knights of Pythias hall. The Pythian burial service was read by Glenn W. Jackson. The ceremony was held at 2:00 o'clock.

Present at the services were a large number of the lodge members and friends of the family. Mr. Lightfoot had lived in Gladstone since 1886, coming here on the first boat that ever docked at this city, and was known to all of the early settlers and to most of the more recent comers.

For many years he was engaged in the real estate business and had great faith in the future of the city. Throughout Gladstone are parcels of land which he purchased in anticipation of the development that would come.

AGED RESIDENT DIES SUDDENLY

N. J. Neveaux, 83, Succumbs Sunday Following Operation

Napoleon J. Neveaux, 83, one of Gladstone's oldest residents and a pioneer of the upper peninsula, died Sunday morning at 7:45 at St. Francis hospital, Escanaba. Mr. Neveaux was stricken with his fatal illess on Friday and an emergency operation failed to save his life. Previous to his last illness, he had been in apparent good health and was a familiar figure about the city.

The body was taken to the Swenson mortuary to be prepared for burial and funeral services will be held from the home, 1002 Superior avenue Wednesday morning at 9:30. Burial will be made in Fernwood cemetery. The body was taken to the home yesterday and will lie in state there until the hour of the services.

Mr. Neveaux had lived in Gladstone for 10 years, coming here from Manistique, in which city he had lived since pioneer days. During the years in Manistique he was engaged in the drug business and when he came to Gladstone he purchased a drug store here. Several years ago he sold this and retired from active business life.

He was born in Scholastic, Canada, coming to the United States as a young man. The date of his birth was April 2, 1849. Fifty-four years ago he was married, his widow and seven of his eight children surviving him.

The surviving children, all of whom will be in Gladstone for the funeral services, are three sons, M. J. Neveaux, of Gladstone, Dona, of Minneapolis, and Albert, of Marquette, and four daughters, Adelle, Gladstone, and Viola, Mable and Nora of Chicago. Two brothers John, Gladstone, and Thomas, Colby, Wis., eleven grandchildren and 3 great-grandchildren also survive.

Hire Novel Band For Legion Dance

Art and his World War Buddies, a 12-piece band has been engaged by the Gladstone Legion post to play for the Legion Promenade that wil be held at the Dutch Mill on the evening of August 19, according to an announcement made yesterday by A. D. Alguire, chairman of the Legion arrangements committee.

The band is made up entirely of war veterans who are touring the country in war style. A trailer, fitted up like the French box cars in which the troops were transported in France and pulled by a truck chassis on which is mounted a locomotive body will bring the band here. Prior to the dance the band will parade the streets of Gladstone and Escanaba.

One of the feature attractions of the band is a clown cop, whose antics are said to be equalled only by the performance of the band itself.

Local Legion men are planning for one of the biggest events ever staged by the local post.

Manistique Man, Now in Detroit, Files From 15th District

Lewis F. Brady, legal associate of U. S. A. Heggblom, attorney at law and candidate for Congress, has filed the petitions of more than 2,000 electors of the 15th Congressional District for the purpose of placing the name of U. S. A. Heggblom on the primary ballot as a candidate for Congress from the 15th Congressional District.

Brady filed those petitions as the secretary of the Detroit College of Law Class of 1922 and as the vice-president of the Detroit College of Law, Alumni Chapter of the Sigma Delta Kappa Legal Fraternity. Heggblom at present is the presiding officer of the first-mentioned organization and is a charter member of the latter organization, which organizations have been sponsoring Heggblom's candidacy.

Manistique High Graduate

Heggblom is a Progressive Republican, and has been since the Theodore Roosevelt Bull Moose days of 1912. Heggblom maintains that the great majority of the Republicans of Michigan are progressives rather than conservatives or reactionaries, and that Michigan should send to Washington progressive and liberal minded congressmen.

Heggblom was born in the Upper Peninsula, graduated from the Manistique High School, and received his further education from the Detroit Teachers College, Detroit Institute of Technology, College of the City of Detroit, the Detroit College of Law where he received his L. L. B. degree, and at the University of Detroit where he received his master of law degree. Prior to receiving his legal education he was quartermaster aboard the U. S. S. Search. In 1924 he made his first venture into national politics by opposing Congressman Clarence J. McLeod. He was unsuccessful in his attempt to defeat Congressman McLeod but did come in second in that race, with a vote of 18,125. From 1919 to 1922 Heggblom was a member of the faculties of the Detroit College of Law and the Detroit Hudson School, and since that time he has been actively engaged in his profession as a lawyer.

Mr. Heggblom is a former resident of Manistique, Mich., and is also well known at Escanaba. Mr. Heggblom's wife, formerly Miss Sima Soderbeck of Manistique was a teacher in Escanaba's public schools about 8 years ago and was a member of the Michigan Republican State Central Committee from Wayne county, 1928 to 1930.

Authorities Search For Missing Youth

Search is being made for Fred Marks, 14-year-old Manistique Heights youth, who left the city Friday afternoon after having been committed to the Boys' Vocational school at Lansing. The youth was supposed to have been taken to Lansing yesterday morning after having been connected with a series of thefts.

On June 10, young Marks was put on probation by Judge Edmund Ashford after the youth had exploded a gas tank on a county road roller by touching a match to it, causing damage estimated at $40.00. He was then placed in the employ of the county road commission until such time as he had paid for the damages.

Marks then became implicated in a series of thefts from the county garage and was committed to the vocation school. Judge Ashford, however, suspended his sentence during good behavior and the youth was put on probation to his parents. Soon after he was again involved in thieving and was recommitted to the institution. As the vocational school provides for admittance only between the first and ninth day of each month, Marks was scheduled to be taken to Lansing by the county agent yesterday.

Friday he was seen walking along Highway US-2 west of the city, but when a search was conducted later, could not be found.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Aug. 1 (AP)—Stocks found profit-taking a somewhat more formidable obstacle today, but managed to salvage enough of their early afternoon gains to close with a nominal average net gain.

Industrials and utilities steamed merily ahead during much of the active session, although heavy realizing in rails went on under cover of the rally and the inability of carriers to throw off their reactionary tendencies eventually led to late selling elsewhere. Extreme gains of 1 to 4 points were sharply reduced, in some instances to fractions, while a number of rails lost a point or more on the day. Sales totaled 2,106,806 shares.

A. T. & T. Pushes Up

Oils revived for a time following declaration of New Jersey's Standard's usual extra dividend of 25 cents and a regular 25-cent payment by the Indiana company. American Telephone pushed up 4½ points to 94½ in active trading, which represented a handsome profit from the July 70's, and enough realizing appeared to reduce the net gain to 1½. U. S. Steel preferred all but lost a 2 point advance, while the common, after selling at 30 3-8, fell back to 29½, up 5-8.

American Tobacco B's 4 point jump was cut in half, while Auburn converted a rise of 4½ into a loss of similar size. Westinghouse, Woolworth, Eastman, National Dairy, National Biscuit and Consolidated Gas saved a point or thereabout of their maximum appreciation. Union Pacific and Santa Fe reacted a couple of points net, while New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio and New Haven were down one. Preferred stocks were generally higher, although they showed little volume.

The bond market carried on, beginning August as it had ended July on a rising trend. In commodities, zinc prices followed the recent improvement by lead, while rubber futures commanded speculative attention, apparently on the firmer statistical position.

The sharpest gain to be reported in many weeks occurred today in the nation's monetary gold stocks, which increased by $10,947,400.

Curb Overcomes Profit Taking to Close Day Higher

New York, Aug. 1 (AP)—Stocks on the curb market today overcame several mild flurries of profit-taking and the general list showed many net gains of fractions to over a point.

The utilities held the limelight, with preferred shares again active. While the Standard Oil stocks were quietly steady, some of the independents moved ahead by sizeable fractions.

United Light & Power convertible preferred moved up 2½ points net to 19½. Electric Bond and Share 6 percent preferred also rose 2½ net. Fractional gains or better were scored by a number of common stocks including Electric Bond and Share, American Light & Traction and Cities Service.

Standard Oil of Indiana, which declared its regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share, reacted slightly. Standard of Kentucky was unchanged, Gulf Oil moved up 5-8 and Humble rose ½. Pure Oil preferred reached a new high at 50.

More Ore Buying Significant Trend In Steel Market

Sentiment in iron and steel that the next turn will be upward is deep-seated enough to survive even an avalanche of financial statements showing that the losses of the industry in the second quarter averaged $13.78 per ton of ingots produced, or more than half their cost, compared with a deficit of $7.72 per ton in the first quarter, states the magazine Steel.

Continuance of the 16-17 per cent steel operating rate of the past two weeks into the week beginning July 31 indicates that actual demand has not accelerated appreciably, but cutcroppings that foreshadow better demand are more numerous. In fact, sentiment threatens to become as over-optimistic as it was over-pessimistic recently, and leaders of the industry prefer making progress slowly but surely.

Most significant of the week's developments is the decision of several Middle West buyers of Lake Superior iron ore to expand their releases for this season. The additional tonnage is comparatively small, but this is the first reversal in the tendency to whittle shipments down.

New York, Aug. 1 (AP)—Standard Brands, Inc., has started a program of expansion involving its Fleischmann Yeast plant at Peekskill, N. Y., the company also plans to build a new plant at Chicago for roasting coffee and distributing both coffee and tea over the north central states.

Stockholders of Liquid Carbonic Co. will vote August 22 on a plan to reduce the amount of capital represented by the no par stock to $30 a share from $49.32 a share. The reduction is to be effected by transferring approximately $6,615,489 to capital surplus from capital account, leaving $10,272,180 as stated capital.

The Central Public Service corporation has arranged with bankers to extend its bank loans until 1935, it was announced today. On April 30 last the comapny's loans amounted to $5,650,000.

Brokerage circles hear that several more consolidations of stock exchange firms will be arranged before the end of the year unless business on the exchange shows signs of a permanent broadening.

we going to get rid of it, if we lay our hands on it? Ever think of that?"

Buck Harkins swung his chair around and eyed Chile. "Say, for half a million I could get rid of the City Hall, wrapped up in tissue paper with a red ribbon on it."

Chile returned his glance speculatively. "I believe you," he decided quietly. "Well, guess I'll be moving on." He reached the door.

"Chile!"

"Yeah?"

"Saccarelli's crazy about the Kid's sister."

"Young Moran?"

"Young Moran. I seen them dancing. He's almost in love with her. I wouldn't accuse him of being entirely in love with anyone though—except the Empress of Peru!"

Chile stared. "Empress? Going in for high life is he? The son of a gun!"

Buck swaved a hand explanatorily. "That's the name he gave the diamond, Chile. Empress of Peru. Peru ain't had no Empress, see? Well the trade ain't never had no diamond like this one. That's how I figure it."

Chile nodded. "I see."

"Well!" Buck turned briskly to his desk once more for a last minute accounting. He glanced about to add, "Sooner or later Steve will show the diamond to this girl of his. Women love diamonds. Savvy?"

"I savvy."

"Fine. Keep the Kid occupied with any phoney job you can think of and pay him 50 smackers a week. Toss in a present of some clothes. Supply him with theater tickets and introduce him to some good-looking dames. Sooner or later he's going to tell us where the little old Empress hides out. See?"

"Well," Chile smiled broadly, "now that you mention it, Buck, I do see. A 50-50 split, Buck, eh?"

"Fifty-fifty, Chile!" Buck nodded. "Like always."

Outside the door Chile lighted a cigaret meditatively. "Like always. Yeah!"

Olympic Stadium, Los Angeles, Aug. 1 (AP)—The United States more than doubled its point total in the Olympic track and field championships today as American prestige in the classic 100 meters was regained for the first time in 12 years.

After a prolonged debate over one of the closest 100-meter finishes in Olympic history, between two American negroes, Eddie Tolan of Detroit received the official judges' decision over his youthful rival, Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette university star, and was credited with the world record equalling time of 10.3 seconds.

Altogether, the day's spectacular athletic battle involved the equalling of two world records in men's events, a new world mark for women sprinters by the Polish-American girl, Stella Walsh, and the creation of new Olympic standards in four events.

It brought the total of new Olympic track and field records up to nine for only two days of competition.

Finish Very Close

Metcalfe was acclaimed and even announced, tentatively, as the victor after he and Tolan had dashed to the tape inches apart. Not even the judges were in agreement and it was some time before they emerged from their huddle with the verdict in Tolan's favor which apparently surprised the entire gallery of experts as well as most of the 60,000 spectators.

The defending 100-meter champion, Percy Williams of Canada, passed from the picture in the semi-finals and in the decisive dash, the final order was Tolan, Metcalf, Jonath of Germany, Simpson of the U. S. A., Jobert of South Africa and Yochioka of Japan.

The 40-meter hurdles championship remained within the British empire, but passed from the hand of the popular Lord David Burghley of England to Robert Tisdall of Ireland in a slashing final.

Tisdall was crowned Olympic champion, but deprived of a new world and Olympic record of 51.8 seconds because he knocked over the last hurdle.

Glenn Hardin, Louisiana boy running for the United States, finished a close second and had the novel distinction of being credited with equalling the world record of 52 seconds, although beaten. This time also displaced the Olympic record.

Morgan Taylor, who set the world mark four years ago and won the Olympic crown in 1924, finished third, just ahead of Lord Burghley.

Ireland's colors flew to the staff-head for the second time during the afternoon when Dr. Patrick O'Callaghan came from behind with his final hammer throw to win the Olympic championship for the second straight time. He hurled the 16-pound implement 176 feet, 11 1-8 inches to beat his Finnish rival, Ville Porhola.

Pete Zaremba of New York won third place for the United States in the hammer throw.

With six men's track and field events completed, the United States showed a two-day total of 58 points. Ireland moved into second place with 20, and Finland slipped back to third with 16. Canada, Poland and Germany had 10 each.

CAMERA PROVES IT

Los Angeles, Aug. 1 (AP)—The electro - photographic "camer-clock" shows Eddie Tolan gained the decision over Ralph Metcalfe for the Olympic 100 meter championship by two inches, Gustavus T. Kirby, American member of the board of judges, told the Associated Press tonight. All the judges agreed their official decision was sustained by the motion pictures, Kirby said.

FRANCE KEEPS TENNIS TROPHY

Borotra Beats Allison But Vines Upsets Cochet

Paris, Aug. 1 (AP)—While a storm of disparaging comment filled the sports pages, the beaten United States Davis cup forces lauded the play of the victorious French today and prepared to forget all about the international tennis competition until 1933.

"The 1932 Davis cup matches are over," said Bernon Prentice, non-playing captain of the United States team. "We lost to a great French team and three splendid sportsmen. Jean Borotra, the veteran campaigner, was supreme.

"We return home knowing we have in Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn the greatest doubles team in the game today and we're proud of Ellsworth Vines' splendid victory over Henri Cochet. Borotra pulled out a great match with Allison played well enough to win.

"I believe the stage is set now for an American victory in 1933."

French sporting pages were not so lenient, however, and a storm of comment was aroused by several decisions of the linesmen giving Borotra points which the French critics thought should have gone to Allison, and which would have given the Americans the odd match needed to lift the cup.

RETAINS CUP

Paris, July 31 (AP)—France retained the Davis cup today by defeating the United States, three matches to two, in the challenge round.

Jean Borotra clinched the cup for France's defenders when he defeated Wilmer Allison, 1-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2, 7-5, in the first of today's final singles matches.

Ellsworth Vines then gave the United States its first singles victory of the series by defeating the great Henri Cochet, 4-6, 0-6, 7-5, 8-6, 6-2.

A capacity crowd of 12,000 witnessed the closing struggles and was treated to breath-taking tennis.

Allison All But Won

Only by the barest of margins did Allison fail to defeat Borotra and bring the cup back to America after six years. In the fifth set the Texan led 5-3 in games and 40-love on his own service, only to have the Bounding Basque rally spectacularly to win. Allison had match point six times in the final set.

It was Borotra's second victory of the challenge round. He defeated Vines on the opening day. Cochet broke even, defeating Allison, but losing to Vines. Allison and Johnny Van Ryn defeated Cochet and Jacques Brugnon in the doubles yetserday.

St. Ignace Defeats Manistique Legion

Manistique, Aug. 1—St. Ignace even up the score on the Manistique Athletics Saturday when they defeated the locals by a score of 4-2 in a Junior league baseball game played at St. Ignace. A week previous, the Athletics won from the Saints, 6-2. A return game will be played here between the two teams during the latter part of August.

Both teams tallied in the first frame when the A's scored both of their runs and the Saints shoved across a tally. The game was sewed up in the third inning when the Saints scored a brace of runs on three errors. The final run of the game was shoved across by St. Ignace in the fourth.

Griffin, pitching for the A's, and Hammel, hurling for the Saints, staged a pretty pitchers' battle. Griffin, however, was given ragged support, the A's committing four misplays. The locals outhit the Saints, 7-4, but could not produce with men on the sacks.

The A's staged a short-lived rally in the ninth when Griffin and Matthews singled. The former was cut down at the plate, however, and the uprising was nipped in the bud. It was the first defeat in eight starts for the local hurler. The A's have now won 15 games out of 18 games played.

YANKEES BEAT DETROIT AGAIN

Tigers Drop Third Consecutive Game to New York, 6-3

Detroit, Aug. 1 (AP)—Danny MacFayden kept the Detroit Tigers' eleven hits well scattered while his teammates were making the most of their 12 blows to give the American League leaders their third straight victory over the Tigers. The score was 6 to 3.

Tony Lazzeri and Frank Crosetti stayed on several budding Detroit rallies, the former handling nine chances and the latter 12 without a bobble. Ruth's great splurge of hitting was stopped, the Babe being handed four straight passes after striking out in the first inning.

Escanaba Brewers Beat Ford River

The Escanaba Brewers defeated Ford River, 6 to 5, in a hard fought baseball game at the Ford River diamond Sunday afternoon.

The Ford Riverites out-hit the Brewers, but lost the advantage because of poor base running. Next Sunday, Ford River will play at Schaffer.

The Escanaba Rangers were again granted use of the Escanaba high school athletic field by the board of education at its recent meeting at the rental fee of $50 per game and other terms prevailing last fall.

The board decided to donate the rental receipts for the relief of destitute children in the schools.

ATHLETICS NIP CLEVELAND, 1-0

Tribe Shutout Second Time in Row, Walberg Winner

Cleveland, Aug. 1 (AP)—Rube Walberg bested Wes Ferrell in a hitter pitching duel that was not decided until the ninth inning today as Philadelphia made it three straight over Cleveland, 1 to 0.

The Athletics' southpaw, pitching the second shutout the Indians have suffered in as many days, yielded only four hits.

Ferrell allowed but two safeties until the ninth, when the vicitors grouped three singles for the only tally of the contest. Cochrane, Foxx and McNair supplied the punch that sent the Athletic catcher home with the winning tally.

22 Scoreless Innings

The victory gave Philadelphia two and a half game lead over the Tribe which slipped back to 10½ games behind the league leading Yankees.

Since the fifth inning of Saturday's game, the Indians have failed to score in 22 consecutive innings. The shutout also was Walberg's second straight.

The score was identical with yesterday's, when Grove outpitched Harder in another 1 to 0 battle before 80,284 spectators at the opening game in the new municipal stadium. The crowd dwindled to 12,000 today.

'STIQUE LOSES 21-INNING TILT

Masonville Wins Overtime Game With Schoolcrafters, 6-5

Rapid River, Aug. 1 (Special)—Bush leaguers seldom see extra inning games of base ball, especially when a game goes 21 innings. Masonville and Rapid River fans were treated to such a game yesterday afternoon at the Masonville diamond when Manistique was entertained. Masonville won by the score of 6 to 5. Miller and Trottier formed the battery for Masonville during the first nine innings, during which time Miller yielded up six hits. At the beginning of the ninth frame Masonville was leading 3 to 2, and the game should have ended then but for an error by the catcher, which allowed a run to score. Wright replaced Miller in the tenth and finished the game.

Sharkey and Bartman constituted the Manistique battery. Sharkey hurling 18 innings, during which time he allowed 14 hits, and struck out 15. Zelbeck twirled the last three innings for Manistique and was the losing pitcher.

Miller struck out eight and Wright was invincible in the pinches, striking out 18 men, five coming in the last two innings.

Manistique made two scores in their half of the eleventh, and then Masonville came back in the last half to tie it up in a knot. In the 21st inning, Trottier, first man up, hit over second. Morris sacrificed him to second, and he then went to third on a pass ball. Bert Ebbeson then hit a clean single through short, scoring Trottier with the winning run.

In addition to pitching a stellar game, Wright was also the hitting demon of the game, getting five hits out of nine times up.

Masonville has won five league games and lost four.

Rock Beats Perkins, 6-4, in 10th Inning

Perkins, Mich., Aug. 1, (Special)—Perkins lost a ten-inning heart breaker to their old rivals, Rock, by a 6-4 score here Sunday.

The game was one of the best exhibitions ever staged here, being featured by fine pitching and brilliant fielding on the part of both teams.

Rock scored two runs in the ninth inning to overcome a Perkins lead, and send the game into extra innings. In the tenth, singles by Jokela, Rabideau and E. Salmi and a sacrifice bunt by Larson scored two runs. The local heavy artillery of Gibbs, Gustafson and Shorkey was set down in that order in the last half of the tenth to end the game.

Gibbs, local hurler, allowed but nine hits and struck out six but his mates erred four times. Kempainen, of Rock, allowed seven hits in 6 1-3 innings and his successor, Rabideau allowed two hits in 3 2-3 innings and he struck out three men.

Shorkey of Perkins, was the hitting star getting two triples and a double. Rabideau led his team with three singles.

BOXERS TO GO TO MARQUETTE

Local Fighters to Be On Prison City Card On August 12

Marquette, Aug. 1 (Special)—Amateur boxers of Marquette and Escanaba will meet in the Palestra arena here Friday, August 12, in the first inter-city card to be staged in Marquette, it was announced yesterday by George Hurley, promoter for the Richard M. Jopling post of the American Legion.

Local mitt slingers will start training immediately and will report at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Palestra for their first workout.

Although no definite card has been arranged, it is believed that several of the leather pushers who performed in Escanaba July 27, when the Marquette and Delta county boxers split even in verdicts, will be seen in action again.

O'Neill and Woody Betts will probably oppose the strongest of the Escanaba fighters, as they were successful in winning their bouts last Thursday. Ed. Malmgren, who lost to the Escanaban, Leon Walker, in the second round of their match on a foul, has issued a challenge to Walker and will undoubtedly be given another chance in the show here. Other Escanaba battlers who are expected to make their first appearance in the Palestra arena are Tiger Johnson, Buddy Tolan and Francis Shimberg.

The Legion post also is planning to sponsor matches here between Marquette county boys and amateurs from other sections of the upper peninsula in the next several months.

Escanaba Yankees Defeat Red Wings

A three-bagger by Pete Hirn was sufficient Monday to defeat the Red Wings, and Hirn's team, the Escanaba Yankees, won by a score of 3 to 0. The batteries were: Yankees—Ed Gleich and Ed Hirn; Red Wings—Ed Powers and Clarence Hirn. Gleich struck out three men in a row.

PHILLIES ROUT BUCS BY 18-5

League Leading Pirates Lose Three Straight to Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Aug. 1 (AP)—A barrage of 23 hits, including nine doubles, a triple and a home run, placed the Phillies within seven games of first place in the National league as they won their third striaght from the league leading Pittsburgh Pirates today. The score was 18 to 5.

Manager George Gibson sent four pitchers to the firing line but all were hit hard and often, the Phillies driving Meine from the mound in the fourth with a seven-run attack, sending Brame to the showers with another seven-run rally in the fifth and continuing their scoring at the expense of Spencer and Chagnon. Flint Rhem went the route for the Phillies for his 12th victory of the season.

The triumph may have proved costly to the Phillies as Don Hurst, the league's leading hitter, was hit on the head with a pitched ball by Spencer in the fifth and had to leave tthe game. Later he was taken to a hospital for a thorough examination.

Virgil Davis was the power house of the Phillies attack, driving in six run with his 13th homer of the season, a double and two singles.

Several Hundred at Township Picnic

Several hundred persons attended the picnic given at the Luce county park on Sunday by the McMillan township band assisted by members of the local post of the American Legion. The event was managed by Russell Hild, manager of the band and went off in a fine manner, every moment of the day from 11 a. m., when the first cars arived until the last bather left the water at night being crammed with pleasure.

A big dinner was served at one o'clock. Although many took basket lunches there was plenty on hand free to all. Circus lemonade, in large quantities, and hot goulash furnished by the Legion members added much to the fun of the day. Members of the summer colony living in the cottages around the lake lent their motor boats so dozens of people had swift rides on the water. Tourists camping in the park, sixteen tents of them, also joined in the festivities. Many of them had planned to leave that day but remained for the event and cooperated with the band members and guests in making a good time. Members of the state police were on hand to give assistance of any sort and also attended to the parking of the 150 cars.

The band music given in a program which lasted nearly all of the afternoon, was directed by Jack Baetz and was much enjoyed. Fifteen persons came over from Manistique, among them being several of the Manistique band members. A program of sports and games was much enjoyed.

Michigan Professor Foresees Air Lines Through Greenland

By MERLE OLIVER

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 31—(AP)—Greenland settlements will be the ports of call for commercial airplane service between America and Europe when it is established, in the opinion of Prof. William Herbert Hobbs, University of Michigan geologist and veteran explorer.

"It is now clear," Prof. Hobbs says, "that future airplane service will have to be by way of Greenland, since the direct transatlantic flights are still far too hazardous for commercial purposes. British, American and German interests all have been giving serious attention to the exploration of Greenland for future air routes, the Germans by a great exploring expedition and by the flights on Von Gronau."

Prof. Hobbs himself pioneered in this work in several university of Michigan Greenland expeditions.

Lakes for Landing

"For Great Britain," he says, "the possibility of a future connection with Canada has importance in the event of blocked seas in time of war, and a well equipped British arctic air route expedition in 1930 made surveys about the principal East Greenland settlement of Angmagssalik. The preliminary report on this expedition, just published, shows that the east coast was surveyed for 350 miles and the mountains back of the coast were surveyed for 150 miles about the station as a center.

"The British found that two fresh water lakes separated by a distance of 90 miles are located in positions well adapted for landing with the use of pontoons in summer and with skiis in winter."

Fogs which are so widely reported over the sea east of Greenland seldom extend inland, according to Prof. Hobbs. The British found visibility over the great northern island remarkably good. The expedition was equipped with two small airplanes, and flights were made in all months of the year and over the ice-cap in most months. In all, some 23 flights were made totalling 32 hours in the air. From the air objects were visible in fair weather generally to a distance of 100 miles or more, and exceptionally even to 200 miles.

Ice Fields Safe

"In summer," Prof. Hobbs says, "flying conditions even over the central ice-cap were described as ideal, and flights also were made in winter when blizzards are frequent.

"Although the planes of the British expedition were flown many times over the ice-cap, they at no time landed upon it. I have long maintained that landing on any but crevassed marginal portions of this cap should be easy. Taking off would be somewhat more difficult because of the high altitude (8,000 to 10,000 feet) but with the planes provided with high ceilings this should be accomplished without difficulty."

Prof. Hobbs believes the experiences of the Wegener German expedition of 1930-31 show the practicability of making landings upon the great ice fields of Greenland. The Wegener party was provided with "propellor sledges" built like airplanes on skiis, but with insufficient power to lift the sleds off the snow. Even when heavily loaded these "propellor sledges" traveled at an average rate of 22 to 30 miles an hour across the ice-cap, although it was difficult to get them over the rough marginal portion of the field.
